

TENNESSEE AT SHILOH

Bill Introduced in the Tennessee Legislature for Park.

Josiah Patterson in Favor of $25,000 for Monuments to the Dead From That State.

MAKES STRONG PLEA

Senator A. K. Hancock, of Memphis has introduced in the general assembly of Tennessee a bill to appropriate $25,000 for the erection of a monument in Shiloh park to commemorate the valor of Tennessee soldiers on that bloody battlefield.

The bill was drawn by Colonel Josiah Patterson, the Confederate member of the Shiloh national park commission, to whom the effort is a labor of love. Colonel Patterson is perhaps better acquainted with the necessities of the situation at Shiloh park than any other Tennessean.

In discussing the bill and its purport Colonel Patterson said:

"Tennessee had 28 regiments of infantry, six batteries of artillery, Forrest's cavalry corps and several independent organizations at the battle of Shiloh, twice as many soldiers as any other state, and the battle was fought on Tennessee soil, and no sum has ever been appropriated by the state to commemorate them.

"The states of Ohio, Illinois, Iowa and Indiana have each appropriated from $40,000 to $60,000 to build monuments there. Pennsylvania, New York, Wisconsin Michigan and Minnesota are on the eve of making appropriations, although they had but few regiments in the battle. It is hoped that Tennessee will build one monument at least to the memory of her soldiers.

"Congress has dealt impartially toward both Federal and Confederate soldiers. For instance, there is a monument to General Albert Sydney Johnston, as well as to the Federal generals. Markers and tablets have been placed for the dead of both armies. No difference has been made between the contending armies, and they stand on an equality."

BOB FLATT WAS CUT

Former Member of the Legislature Slightly Slashed.

Former Circuit Judge Robbins Has to Use His Knife on Him at Wickliffe.

FLATT WAS DRINKING

The following dispatch was sent out yesterday from Paducah:

"Judge J. E. Robbins, of Mayfield, and Attorney Bob Platt of Clinton, got into a difficulty at the Wickliffe tonight over a decision rendered by Judge Robbins about a year ago in the Ayers-Flatts election case, in which Platt was slightly cut about the throat and neck. The wounds were not serious. The trouble came up at the hotel upstairs. Platt was under the influence of liquor, and while in that condition brought on the trouble which came near costing him his life. Judge Robbins was not hurt and did not have to use his knife on him."

It seems that the trouble, as stated in the dispatch, resulted from the judge's decision in a contest in which Platt claimed the Democratic nomination for representative from that district. An injunction came up and Judge Robbins decided it against Platt, and he bolted, being elected to the legislature by the disgruntled Democrats and Republicans over the Democratic candidate, Colonel Mott Ayers. Platt probably held a grudge against Judge Robbins and attempted to settle the old score while drinking.

Judge Robbins resigned only a short time ago as circuit judge of that district and is one of the best known attorneys in this part of the state.

ENGINEER HURT

Details of the Greenfield Wreck Received.

Fifty Feet of Trestle Burned in Addition to Cars.

Fulton, Ky., Jan. 7.—Engineer Lee Chandler was slightly bruised and 50 feet of trestle and four cars were burned by a wreck near Greenfield, Tenn., yesterday.

It was a rear-end collision and occurred two and one-half miles south of Greenfield on the Illinois Central railroad. Second 51 ran into the rear end of first 51, both freights. Engine 608, piloted by Engineer Chandler on second 51 was overturned and Chandler hurt. His fireman escaped injury. Four box cars were totally destroyed. Fifty feet of trestle was also burned which delayed traffic over that division about 30 hours.

It is reported that first 51 broke in two parts and was delayed on the main line. From some fault the crew on the second section of 51 did not see, or there was no signal, and ran into the rear part. Conductor Steinback had charge of the first section and Conductor Sutton the second section.

ONE MILE IS STRUNG

Work on the Illinois Central Telegraph Line Has Begun.

Yesterday the Wiring Began and Two Officials Are Here—Destructive Wreck at Greenfield, Tenn.

OTHER RAILROAD NOTES

Mr. E. A. Burton, who will have charge of the telephone and telegraph construction work on the Cairo division of the Illinois Central, is in the city today arranging to begin the work of setting the poles. He has his orders from Chicago to begin work immediately and to waste no time in getting things in working order. The poles will be set by one gang, and the working will be done by another gang that will follow close on the heels of the first. In this way the work will be kept going and by the time the poles are all set the wiring will have been done also.

One mile of wire was strung yesterday. Mr. C. W. Stockdale, of Chicago, is also here looking over the work.

The wreck at Greenfield, Tenn., yesterday was a destructive one for the railroad company. The second section of freight No. 155 ran into the first section of the same train and six cars and one caboose were burned. No full report was received here and no further particulars could be learned of the wreck.

Mr. G. W. Smith, one of the assistants to William Renshaw, superintendent of machinery of the Illinois Central, returned to the city last night and remained here all today making inspections of the local mechanical department of the Illinois Central.

PAPA RELENTED

AND THEN THE YOUTHFUL TWAIN FROM KENTUCKY WAS MARRIED.

Clarksville, Tenn., Jan. 7.—Coon Harris and Miss Lula Stokes, an eloping couple from near Elton, Ky., drove through to Clarksville reaching here Monday morning for the purpose of getting married. They failed in their effort to get a license owing to the youth of the girl and bought tickets for the purpose of going to Erlin, Tenn., where they hoped to have better luck. As they were about to board the train the girl's father appeared on the scene and lovers hid in the station until he went off. Then they came up town where they were finally located by the father with the aid of the police. The lovers finally succeeded in getting the consent of their families to their marriage, a license was procured and they were finally united at the courthouse by a justice of the peace.

TAKEN TO THE HOSPITAL.

Tom Walker of Clarksville, Tenn., who has been working at the Isaman wagon yard on South Second street, was taken to the city hospital this morning. He is threatened with pneumonia and is in a serious condition.

THE TEACHERS DENY

Say They Had Nothing to Do With the Small Attendance.

Trustee Welle, Who Was in Favor of a Strike, Says It Is All a Mare's Nest.

TEACHERS WANT INQUIRY

There is quite a furor stirred up over the report of Superintendent C. B. Hatfield, of the public schools, to the board of education last night relative to the attendance in the schools. It appears, to the minds of some of the teachers, at least, that a few of the teachers have been held up as examples of insubordination and disrespect in fomenting a strike among the pupils, and the teachers strenuously deny the report.

The board of education, it seems, refused to give the pupils a holiday Christmas eve, although it had been for years the custom to have no school on that date. There was dissatisfaction on part of the pupils, and Trustee Welle, a member of the board, was in open revolt and said if he had time he would himself lead a procession of strikers from the buildings.

Today he stated that he would defend the teachers who are charged, by intimidation if not directly, with being responsible for the conditions that prevailed in some of the schools Christmas eve, to the best of his ability, and that his opinion is that some of the members have only discovered a mare's nest, and the tempest will prove to be in a teapot.

Some of the teachers declare that the proportion of pupils at school on Christmas eve was about the same in all of the rooms, and it was unjust to single out a few to report to the board.

One teacher said this morning: "We did not agitate a strike nor did we encourage any pupil to stay away from their studies. Our grades did have but few in attendance but the attendance in the other schools was no better and I think that the other schools should have been reported at the same time we were. It does not place us in the right light, rather to the contrary, and we are more than glad that it has been referred to the grievance committee for investigation. We will be ready for an investigation whenever the committee wishes it and are only too glad for the opportunity to set ourselves aright."

"There was some little strike agitation among the pupils but it was not instigated by the teachers but by outsiders," another teacher said, "and in his report the superintendent leaves the impression that we are to blame. Had he reported similarly on the other schools then we would not have felt that he blames us for the matter. As he mentioned the High school teachers only the general impression that we are to blame for it all is left and we only wish to set ourselves right."

MR. ED ATKINS BETTER.

Mr. E. L. Atkins was reported slightly better today. This morning he showed a slight improvement and has not grown worse through the day.

The Sun's Trade Review Is Receiving Good Support

Since work on The Sun Spring Trade Edition was started it has shown gratifying results. Our prominent industries and merchants have taken active interest in the project and are giving the big undertaking their heartiest support. The edition will contain more valuable information about our city's prospects and what we have to offer to the capitalist than any like edition ever published heretofore. The circulation will not be confined strictly to Paducah but will embrace as many states as possible in order to attract outside investors' attention to our growing city. Everything pertaining to the city's interests will be represented in the edition.

The present information at hand shows that our business men have had the most prosperous season in the commercial history of the city. It averages from 20 to 30 per cent. increase over the year of 1901. The edition will give the views of our merchants as to the city's future, and what they have accomplished in the past year. It will be a business edition to put our merchants' names before the general public and tell what they have done and will do.

Locations in the edition are being disposed of rapidly. This is an excellent opportunity for the merchant to select space before the choice locations are taken. Send in your data and what you are doing from a business view and we will give it our attention. The articles will appear in the daily and weekly issue.

THE SCHOOL BOARD

Trustees Decide That They Need $45,000 to Run Schools.

Order an Investigation of Alleged Encouragement of Strike by Teachers.

J. O. MARET ELECTED TRUSTEE

Trustees Leake and Jackson were absent from last night's regular meeting of the board of education. Trustee J. W. Gleaves presided.

Superintendent Hatfield, of the schools, reported that there were but 18 school days in December and that the attendance was good with the exception of Christmas eve, when only about 50 per cent of the pupils were present. He said that ten out of 37 in Prof. Norvell's and five out of twenty in Miss Mamie Noble's room were present on that day, and that they were dismissed at the morning recess without authority. He said that out of the nineteen in Miss Braxton's room present on that day, all but one "struck." Superintendent Hatfield reported in regard to the cold buildings that this could be avoided if the outer doors were kept closed.

The report of Chairman Bockmon, of the finance committee, showed that during the month $11,948.01 was paid out and $9,861.85 received, leaving an overdraft of $2,086.16 at the bank, but that since then $5,641.61 had been received from the city, leaving $3,554.45 in the treasury. He reported that the City National bank was charging full time for the overdraft and did not think it right. The board concurred in the objection to paying interest on the overdraft.

The special committee appointed to purchase ground in the northern and southern parts of the city for school purposes was granted further time.

Prof. George Harvey, colored, tendered his resignation, which was accepted and Addie Howell, of the county, was elected in his place, subject to successful examination.

The matter of some of the teachers encouraging the pupils to not attend, or to leave school, on Christmas eve was brought up by Trustee Manheim, and he said he thought it an insult to the board and worth investigating.

Secretary Sutherland thought teachers offending in such a manner deserved the severest condemnation, and that the board ought to make a thorough investigation with a view to securing information that might be of service in the next election of teachers. He said that it was setting the pupils a bad example. Trustee Bockmon said he thought an investigation should be held in order to determine who was in fault and who was not, in order to exonerate the innocent, and the motion for an investigation was carried.

The board decided that too much coal was being used at the schools, and Trustee Weille, of the building committee, said that he would visit the schools and give the janitors a lesson in economy.

Trustee J. A. Bauer's position was declared vacant by reason of his removal from the ward he represented, and Mr. John O. Maret was elected in his place.

Chairman Bockmon, of the finance committee, estimated the cost of running the schools during next year, totaling $45,050, divided as follows: Salaries, $26,000; repairs, $1,500; furniture, $1,000; insurance $250; apparatus, $1,000; improvements, $1,500; fuel and light $3,000; incidentals, $500, and rent $300.

This will probably necessitate a levy of 35 cents on the $100, the maximum under the charter, although it cannot be determined for certain until the total valuation of property is learned. The council will be furnished with the above estimate of the cost of running the schools.

Mr. Joseph Mattison was appointed chairman of the grievance, in place of Trustee McNichols resigned, and was also placed on the printing committee. The board then adjourned.

Connellsville, Pa., Jan. 7.—Ivett Eicher, aged 95 years and his wife, residing in Springfield township, have been tortured by masked thieves until they told where their money was hidden.

The robbers held a lighted lamp to Mrs. Eicher's feet and burned them until the flesh fell off before she would consent to show them the strong box where $225 in bills was hidden. Then they bound their victims to their bed with ropes and left them, taking a horse and saddle from the barn.

Eicher, it is said, recognized one of the thieves.

A KENTUCKY SPACE

For a Large Agricultural and Horticultural Display at St. Louis.

Commissioner Nail of Kentucky, Has Appointed Sub-Committees for Each County in State.

COMMITTEE FOR M'ORACKEN

Seven thousand square feet for the agricultural exhibit!

Three thousand square feet for the horticultural exhibit!

This is the amount of space Col. I. B. Nail, chairman of the agricultural and horticultural committee of the Kentucky Exhibit association, will ask of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition.

This will allow Kentucky to make displays of her agricultural and horticultural products several times as large as those at the World's Fair at Chicago ten years ago.

To make his work as effective as possible and to give every section the opportunity to join in the exhibits Col. Nail has appointed sub-committees in all the 119 counties of the state. Through these he hopes to send to St. Louis the most complete exhibit ever made up in the country.

Col. Nail's acquaintance as commissioner of agriculture made it easy for him to pick some of the very best citizens in each county, and it is not necessary to say that he has secured good working committees everywhere. Each man appointed by Col. Nail is asked in his letter of notification to ally himself with the auxiliary of the Exhibit association, which has been formed or is being formed in his county, and help raise the $100,000 fund necessary to erect a Kentucky building and make a full display of the state's products and resources at the exposition. The chairman of each of these sub-committees is also asked to furnish, as soon as possible, a list of the products in an agricultural and horticultural way his county will be able to send specimens of.

Messrs Charles E. Graham, J. M. Finley, W. T. Cockrell and R. E. Ware are the members of the sub-committee for this county on agricultural and horticultural display.

HE USED FORCE.

A MAYFIELD NEGRO DID NOT DESIRE TO PAY HIS FARE.

Mr. J. O. Jennings, a street car motorman on the depot line, had an exciting experience with a Mayfield negro last night just beyond Eleventh on Caldwell street while en route to the depot.

The negro had been on the car for some time and Mr. Jennings had looked back at him several times, a gentle hint to come up and pay his fare, but the negro paid no attention. Jennings next called in to him and the negro came to the front of the car. The motorman asked him why he did not pay his fare and received the reply that he "did not have to." The negro then became insulting and threatened the motorman who was forced to resort to forcible means to eject him from the car. This was done by means of his motor key and the negro is this morning unaccountably wearing a bandage about his head.

WHEN ELKINS

HANDLED FREIGHT.

"There was a time," said Senator Scott of West Virginia, "when my colleague Elkins was a hustling young freight agent, in New Mexico. His office was a box car, and his principal troubles were in making his receipts of freight tally with his bills of lading. One day he had a car load of household furniture switched to his siding. The seal of the car door was quickly broken, as young Elkins, then, as now, always liked to keep up with his work. He was greeted with the cry of an ass as the door slipped back on its rollers. The bill of lading was at once scanned, but there was nothing to show that the animal should be a passenger in this particular car. The goods were all checked out and then Elkins wired the general office thus: "I'm a horse-shoer and a jackass long on this car load of furniture." After a little delay the answer came: "All O.K. The bureau is a burro."—New York Herald.

RHEUMATISM

CANNOT BE RUBBED OUT

But a good liniment or plaster will often give temporary relief because it produces counter irritation or reduces the inflammation and soreness. But no sort of external treatment can have any effect whatever upon the disease itself, for Rheumatism is not a skin disease, but is due to an overacid condition of the blood, and the deposit of irritating matter or Uric Acid salts or sediment in the muscles and joints, and no amount of rubbing or blistering can dislodge these gritty particles or change the acid blood. Rheumatism often becomes chronic, and the muscles and joints permanently stiff and useless and the nervous system almost wrecked, because so much time is lost in trying to cure a blood disease with outside applications or doctoring the skin.

Louisville, Ky., March 27, '02.

Gentlemen:—I am glad to say that S. S. S. has cured me of Rheumatism. About two years ago I suffered from Rheumatism in my knees and feet, my ankles swelling so that I could not put on my shoes. This continued for several months, during which time I was applying liniments and going by my physician's directions, but derived no benefit. I was told of S. S. S. and tried it. I immediately got relief, and continued the medicine until I was entirely well. 2108 Floyd St. D. J. DUANE.

Rheumatism must be treated through the blood, and no remedy brings such prompt and lasting relief as S. S. S. It attacks the disease in the blood, neutralizes the acids, and removes all irritating or poisonous substances from the system.

S. S. S. strengthens and enriches the thin acid blood, and as it circulates through the body, the corroding, gnawing poisons and acid deposits are dislodged and washed out of the muscles and joints, and the sufferer is happily relieved from the discomforts and misery of Rheumatism.

External remedies are all right so far as they go, but they don't go far enough, and you can't depend upon them to do the work of a blood purifier, and those who pin their faith to liniments and plasters as cures are bound to meet with disappointment, and will be nursing a case of Rheumatism the greater part of their lives.

S. S. S. is a purely vegetable remedy, does not contain any Potash or mineral of any kind, and can be taken with safety by old and young.

Rheumatic sufferers who write us about their case will receive valuable and helpful advice from our physicians, for which no charge is made. We will mail free our special book on Rheumatism, which is the result of years of practical experience in treating this disease. It contains in a condensed form much information about Rheumatism.

MR. JOHN MALONE DEAD.

WELL KNOWN CITIZEN PASSES AWAY AFTER A LONG ILLNESS.

Mr. John Malone, a highly esteemed man, died yesterday afternoon late at his home on Monroe near Fourth from paralysis, after a thirteen weeks illness. He became ill the 29th of last July from sunstroke and had been helpless ever since. A few days ago he apparently had a second stroke and the end came rapidly.

Mr. Malone was 59 years old and was born in Cass county, Mo. With his parents he moved to Knightstown, Ind., when quite young and remained there until he came to Paducah several years ago to live. He assisted his son to manage La Belle park for several seasons.

He was married 32 years ago at Omaha City, Neb., to Miss Mira Crawford, who with two sons survives him. His sons are Messrs. Will O. Malone, the well known actor and manager and Paul Malone. The deceased also leaves two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth McAllister, of Anderson, Ind., and Mrs. Freeman Seward, of Chesterfield, Ind.

Mr. Malone was a member of the Knights of Pythias and of the Christian church and was a man everybody liked. The funeral will take place from the house Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Rev. W. H. Pinkerton officiating. The burial will be at Oak Grove under the auspices of the Pythians.

THREW THEM OVERBOARD

INHUMAN ACT OF A SHANTY BOATER UP THE OHIO.

Huntington, W. Va., Jan. 7.—In a jealous rage Rufus Cooper, an occupant of a little family boat moored in the Ohio near the city wharf, threw his wife and two little children into the icy waters of the Ohio river and one of the children floated down stream more than a hundred yards, clinging to a oak of ice before it was rescued. When officers rushed on the boat Cooper attempted to shoot them with a shot gun, but was overpowered. One policeman dealing him a fearful blow over the head with the butt end of a pistol. Cooper has done time in the Ohio penitentiary and had also served in Marietta and Gallipolis jails. He is now in jail and his family is being cared for by authorities.

THIS IS THE NIGHT.

POLICE AND FIRE COMMISSIONERS TO APPOINT NEW FORCES.

The police and fire commissioners will meet tonight and appoint firemen and police for the year. One of the commissioners said this morning that there were about 80 applications on file for consideration but none had been opened yet. As the commissioners have never before met for a similar purpose, it is not exactly known what course they will pursue in making the appointments. The commissioner expressed his opinion that there would be no changes in either the fire or police force, or rather that he had heard none of the other commissioners express a desire to make any changes. The applications will all be opened tonight the first thing after the board has gotten together. Much interest is manifested in the outcome of the meeting especially among the police officers now in the service, all who have applications in for re-appointment.

CIRCUIT COURT

MOTIONS STILL TAKE UP THE COURT'S TIME.

There is little being done in circuit court this week and nothing in the way of regular trials will be done until Monday. A few cases are being set and several confessed judgments being filed and the court is engaged principally in hearing motions.

The case of Paducah Transfer Co. against Mrs. K. Hureh was dismissed.

LOOKING AFTER TELEGRAPH WORK.

Mr. O. W. Stockdale, general foreman for the Postal Telegraph company, is here looking after the work of building the new line from Paducah to Cairo by way of the Illinois Central's new road. A large force of men is now at work placing the poles.

MESSENGER BOY HURT.

John Little, a messenger boy for the Postal, attempted to improvise a cannon from a disused electric light globe in front of the postal office on lower Broadway yesterday by filling it with gunpowder and touching it off, and today carries quite a quantity of powder in his face and ear. Fortunately his eyes escaped.

It Was a Great Year.

In the year just closed the greatest event was the settlement of the Boer war, followed by the voting of British millions for the rehabilitation of South Africa; the largest international incident was the work of The Hague tribunal in deciding the "Pious Fund" dispute between the United States and Mexico; the most stupendous financial operation was Mr. Morgan's steamship combine, embracing 141 steamers of 1,100,000 tonnage; the most remarkable condition was the continued increase of American prosperity in spite of the unparalleled coal strike, which was in itself a breaker of all previous records.

More prominent and spectacular seemed the American invasion of European industries and markets, but in reality the domestic showing of American progress was the most dazzling in the whole history of the world. We must go far back to find ground for a proper contrast. Our national debt reached in 1865 its maximum of $2,381,530,214.96; at the end of 1902 it had been reduced to almost $900,000,000, the figures for the fiscal year ending July 1, 1902, being $931,070,310, a decrease of more than $56,000,000 over the year preceding. All other nations increased their debts during the year; our debt came down more than a million dollars a week, and that, too, against the largest expenditures of any government. During the year the imports increased and the exports decreased, showing a trade balance loss of nearly two hundred millions, and yet in spite of that there has been during the past two years an increase of over $1,300,000,000 in deposits in the national banks, while the deposits in savings and state institutions have shown similar growth. Crops, mining, manufactures and transportation interests all reached their highest totals.

CHARACTER IS WORTH.

Character is what a man really is. Reputation is what he appears to be or is supposed to be. Not every time do character and reputation coincide in the same individual. Men who do not care for character, because they know they are not honest, will do everything in their power to protect their reputation, says the New Orleans Picayune. Character amounts to so much in this world that reputation for honesty becomes exceedingly valuable, because it may save a man from being publicly disgraced.

Valuable as a good character is, it is not sufficiently appreciated by employers. It should be rewarded, particularly when coupled with business ability. But the unscrupulous employer does not want a man who may refuse to do his bidding in some crooked transaction, and so the honest man sometimes goes begging.

But the fact remains that never before was there such need of honest men and women, and the world will sooner or later find it out. Sharp practice does not always win, and customers who are cheated find out the fact, and in time the world will go back to honesty and the sharpers will be cast out. Let the honest workers stand to their principles. They are the foundation upon which the vast and noble structure of virtue and honor is built and must ever remain.

PUGILIST BITTEN BY A CAT.

Hot Springs, Ark., Jan. 7.—Young Corbett received a severe bite on the thumb of his right hand from a large cat that may cause him to cancel his engagement with Austin Rice, scheduled to take place here on the 14th of this month. He had made a pet of the animal, taking it with him on his morning horseback rides, but tonight the cat became angered and set its teeth in the fighter's right thumb. A physician was summoned and cauterized the wound. The cat was taken out and killed immediately by Harry Tenthill.

BISHOP ROBERT DEAD.

Honolulu, Jan. 7.—Bishop Gulstan F. Robert, the head of the Roman Catholic church in the Hawaiian islands, died. Bishop Robert had been ill for some time and was in a dying condition when the Pacific cable was landed in Honolulu. One of the first messages sent over the new cable was from Bishop Robert, who, realizing then that his end was approaching, sent a message to the pope of Rome asking him for his blessing.

JOKE WAS ON CHOATE.

Compliment to His Abilities Not Entirely Relished.

When Rufus B. Choate was in the heyday of his career as a practitioner, he undertook the defense of two men accused of burglary. The prosecution's chief witness contributed some amazing testimony, and among other things swore that the defendant tried to induce him to join with them in the burglary, offering rare induce ments. Choate leaped to his feet, reminded the witness that he was under oath and then menacingly asked: "Now, tell the jury just how my client tried to persuade you to join in a crime!"

The witness hesitated; and Choate repeated the question. The bench upheld him in saying the witness must answer. "Well," faltered the witness, perspiration starting from every pore as he encountered the lawyer's angry gaze, "they said no harm could come to me, for there was a lawyer here in Boston named Choate who could get us off even if we were caught with the money in our boots."

DAILY THOUGHT.

Just to be good, to keep life pure from degrading elements, to make it constantly helpful in little ways to those who are touched by it, to keep one's spirit always sweet and avoid all manner of petty anger and irritability—that is an ideal as noble as it is difficult.—Edward Howard Griggs.

SCHOOL BOARD'S INGRATITUDE

The board of education may always be counted on to do something foolish. From the report of last night's proceedings, it is inferred that the members are a very ungrateful set. They raised objection to being charged by a bank for an "overdraft," which is virtually a loan, and the bank officials claim that the board was not even charged with the overdraft.

As a matter of fact the board of education, for reasons best known to the formulators of the law, are not allowed to borrow a cent. They often do it, but in so doing they are violating the law, and at the same time subjecting either the individual members of the board to the risk of losing the money, or else the bank. The payment of any money borrowed by the board of education could be prevented by any private citizen who cared to bring an injunction suit, and either the bank would lose it, or the individual members of the board who often borrow on their personal note for the benefit of the schools.

It is thus seen that when a bank allows the board to overdraw it is loaning it money, and runs the risk of losing every cent of the money. The board should appreciate it, and if the bank chooses to charge interest on it, should be glad to get off that light. In raising a question over it in public meeting, the board is not only showing up its own indifference to the law in borrowing when it has no right to, but its ingratitude toward benefactors as well.

Every community has, or ought to have, enough law-abiding citizens to keep a check on the lawless elements. If the good, respectable people cannot or will not keep a check on them and afford law-abiding people protection to life and property they must not expect to be treated as other people. If lawlessness holds sway in a community the good people must expect to suffer like good Old Dog Tray, who was caught in bad company, or bask themselves to a more congenial climate. As to President Roosevelt's right to close a postoffice, President Roosevelt has never yet been found doing anything he didn't fully understand. He has always known a little better what he was doing and what right he had to do it than some of the people who abuse and criticize him.

The dismissal of the Sommers bribery case, and the suit against the Goebel reward commission to test its right to spend $100,000 in running down Senator Goebel's murderers, which virtually means persecuting certain Republicans in Kentucky, indicates that the cases have been nicely quashed at Frankfort through the kindly acquiescence of Judge Clegg. Of course it was all very regular, and as the people have about forgotten the "both cases little will be said about them. They can safely be sumed, however, from Judge Cantrell's past acts, that he would never have consented, motion or no motion, to dismiss or file away the cases if there had been any chance to give Republicans the hot end of it.

How much better it would have been for the school board to have used a little common sense, and knowing that pupils are not going to attend school on Christmas eve, given them a holiday. It would have prevented all this muddle over who was to blame for the children's not attending, and would probably have precluded a whole lot of ill feeling that has been engendered among those whose success depends largely on the harmony in which they work, and which feeling it now appears will grow as developments progress.

The acquittal of young Godfrey Hunter indicates that the first reports that appeared in the state papers to the effect that he shot his victim in the back, were based on the fact that young Hunter's father is a Republican. This, in the eyes of some of the Louisville papers, justifies anything you want to say of a man.

The Home Tobacco warehouse at Louisville seems to be up against it. Everything from the sympathy racket to the down "with the trust" cry has been invoked to enable it to compete with other interests there, not thus far without success. Its antics border on the baby act.

President Castro's troops have captured ammunition destined to a revolutionary leader. There will probably be more blinding from the raging rascal as soon as the ammunition is duly apportioned.

If the trouble of all South American countries is to be referred to The Hague tribunal, they might as well begin now to appoint additional tribunals.

The indications are that The Hague tribunal will soon get the Venezuelan trouble, and it will be another feather in the cap of President Roosevelt.

A SAD CAREER.

MALLORY DAVIS WAS ONCE A PROMINENT YOUNG MAN OF LOUISVILLE.

Mallory Davis, the young man who died yesterday in the city hospital here of consumption, was taken to Louisville yesterday afternoon for burial, was once one of the best known young men of Louisville.

He married a daughter of Manager Cooper, of the Galt house, and at one time was himself assistant manager. It is said by his friends that his separation from his wife drove him to drink, and for the last few years he had drifted about, a wreck. Only a short time ago he was arrested here for vagrancy, but upon explaining who he was he was released. He had worked at Grand Rivers at the ferries for several weeks, and had been in the hospital here for only five days. His mother, and sister, Mrs. J. K. Woodward, of Louisville, came after the remains.

FORMER PREMIER SAGASTA DEAD

Madrid, Jan. 7.—Former Premier Sagasta died here, due to bronchitis and gastric trouble. His family was at the death bed and former liberal members of the cabinet were near their old leader. A bishop administered the last sacrament.

The news of the former premier's death created a painful impression throughout Madrid. King Alfonso expressed profound regret.

ADHERED TO.

Washington, Jan. 7.—The Indianola, Miss., postoffice case was discussed by the cabinet at its meeting yesterday and it was decided that the stand taken by the administration should be adhered to, the contention being that the people themselves, and not the government, are responsible for the closing of the office. Postmaster General Payne had no new developments to report.

THE POWERS WILLING

Arbitration Shall Be the Means For Settling Dispute.

Venezuelan Leader, However, Must Agree to Certain Conditions Before Submitting It.

TO BE CONSIDERED SOON

Washington, Jan. 7.—Secretary Hay has received the British answer to President Castro's last proposal relative to arbitration.

The note is interlocutory, but in substance states that if Venezuela wishes a conference with a view of submitting the difference between the two countries to arbitration Great Britain will accept. The conditions attached vary slightly from the original British proposition, but in the judgment of officials here the differences between the allies and Venezuela in respect to arbitration are much diminished, and there is warrant for the expectation that the case will now surely go to The Hague.

Later in the day a separate response to President Castro's last proposal came from Germany. In many respects it was similar to that from Great Britain, and like that it named certain conditions regarding the matters under consideration on which an understanding will have to be reached before the case is submitted to arbitration. Germany's answer, like that of Great Britain, has been sent to President Castro through the intermediary of the United States minister, Mr. Bowen, at Caracas. It the latter conditions suggested by the two allies are accepted by Castro, and the hope among officials here is that they may be, it is expected that a meeting will be held in Washington between Minister Bowen, representing the government of Venezuela, and the ambassadors of Great Britain, Germany and others of the allies to prepare a basis on which the arbitration of the issues between the interested parties shall proceed.

DOING GOOD WORK.

TWO SENSATIONAL ACTIONS HUSHED UP AT FRANKFORT.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 7.—At motion hour in the Franklin circuit court yesterday Commonwealth's Attorney Franklin requested and Judge Cantrell ordered, filed away the indictment returned three years ago against Charles E. Sommers, of Elizabethtown, charged with attempted bribery of Garrett Graves, delegate to the Second Railroad district Democratic convention.

In making the motion Mr. Franklin stated that Mr. Sommers claimed to be part of the $100 alleged to have been given to Graves and was willing that it should be paid into the state treasury. Mr. Franklin further stated that he desired an order that all the money be paid, neither himself nor any other officer receiving any commission out of it. Judge Cantrell directed that the money be paid to the trustee of the jury fund.

On motion of Attorney John W. Hay for the Goebel reward commission on the part of Covington against the commission to test its authority to expend the money appropriated to it to run down the murderers of Governor William Goebel was dismissed by Judge Cantrell.

The dismissal is for lack of prosecution. The case has been lying in the court here for a year and it has been impossible to locate Mr. Covington. He lives somewhere in the eastern section of the state.

TOOK AN APPEAL.

JUDGE HUSBANDS REFUSES A NEW TRIAL IN THE HEADLEY CASE.

Circuit Judge Husbanda has overruled the motion of the commonwealth's attorney for a new trial in the Ellis Headley case, and granted an appeal. Headley was recently on peremptory instructions of the court acquitted in circuit court on a charge of attempted bribery, and the commonwealth made a motion for a new trial, which Judge Husbanda yesterday afternoon refused.

HUNTER IS ACQUITTED

The Trial Revealed Deep Laid Conspiracy to Assassinate Him.

It Was Openly Stated That Young Hunter Was to Be Killed and People Were Invited to See It.

IS COMING BACK HOME

New Orleans, Jan. 7.—Advises from Guatemala state that W. Godfrey Hunter, Jr., has been acquitted of the killing of William A. Fitzgerald. Hunter is expected to arrive here in about two weeks en route to Louisville.

Hunter makes sensational charges against Consul General McNally in a letter received here.

Young Hunter writes that had it not been for his good aim he would have been killed by Fitzgerald or Gen. John Drummond. The writer states that thirty-six witnesses testified under oath that McNally had made the statement that the son of the American minister was not to leave the Guatemalan republic except dead.

He says Senor R. H. Rivinse, a resident of that country, overheard Mr. Barthel ask Fitzgerald why it was that the dead secret service agent had not carried out his promise the night before the killing. Fitzgerald said that his plans had been frustrated, but they would be executed at a certain hour in the Plaza de Armas. He invited Mr. Barthel and Consul General McNally to be in the party at that time, and they would be on hand to see him do the work. Senor Rivinse testified, according to Hunter's letter, that he had inquired of Fitzgerald and Mr. Barthel who they had intended doing up, and Mr. Barthel answered, "Young Hunter."

A SWELL AFFAIR

THE COMBS BANQUET WAS MOST ENJOYABLE TO ALL PRESENT.

Postmaster F. M. Fisher and Major J. H. Ashcraft have returned from Louisville, where they attended the banquet given Hon. Leslie Combs at the Galt house night before last. The only other Republican from the Fifth district was Hon. P. H. Davly, of Polk county.

The banquet was one of the most elaborate ever held in the state. It was attended by 106 of the most prominent men in the state, and it was in no wise a political affair. It was simply a gathering to do honor to Mr. Combs, who has been appointed minister to Guatemala, and leaves shortly. Mr. Combs is one of the most prominent and popular Republicans in the state, and the banquet was a fitting tribute to a man whose worth merits any honor that might be shown him. He leaves in about ten days.

BIG AUCTION

SETTLERS NEAR SHARPE ARE TO RETURN TO ILLINOIS.

An unique occurrence in Marshall county, in the vicinity of Sharpe, is a big auction being conducted by Messrs. Elmy and Fields of that county. A few years ago a number of farmers from Northern Illinois emigrated to Marshall county, Kentucky, to live and purchased farms. They do not like it as well as they like their old home and have decided to move back and are selling off everything. It is said there were yesterday fully 600 people on the grounds when the sale began. It was roared today.

He is suffering from a complication of diseases and has been ill for some time. He has a wife, whose home is in St. Louis. His many friends will regret to learn of his condition.

INJUNCTION CASES

Judge Husbanda's Decision Expected Tomorrow in Circuit Court.

It Is Said He Will Decide Paducah Legally Transferred to Second Class.

NOW AN INTER-REGNUM

The famous injunction suits will tomorrow be decided by Judge Husbanda in circuit court. The first injunction suits, it will be remembered, were brought by two councilmen, whose action was repudiated by the council.

In a few weeks Marshal Crow's office was declared abolished and it was decided to pay City Prosecuting Attorney Gilbert a salary instead of fees. Both entered objection in the shape of injunction suits against the city, seeking to enjoin from the aforesaid action, and urging as one reason that the city had never been legally transferred to the second class.

It is tipped that Judge Husbanda, who set January 9 as the date for rendering final decision, will tomorrow decide that Paducah was legally transferred to the second class by the legislature. It is understood the opinion is now prepared, and while the attorneys may go through the formality of an argument, that Judge Husbanda has decided the case and it may be there will be no argument at all.

If there is argument, however, Judge W. A. Berry will argue it for the plaintiffs and City Solicitor Worley for the city.

A peculiar feature of the decision, if reports should be true, is that Paducah since the transfer March 21, 1902 from the third to the second class, until the officials selected this year under the second class charter take their seat January 1, 1903, nearly two years, has been without any regular form of government at all, legally speaking. The interim is what is known as law as an "inter regnum," between regulars, literally, or an interregnum of the executive government.

This will knock out the office holders in controversy, Marshal Crow and Attorney Gilbert, who will no doubt take an appeal.

PICTURES IN PAPER

A BILL DESIGNED TO PROTECT FROM ADVERTISERS.

Washington, Jan. 7.—Representative Fitzgerald of New York has introduced a bill making it illegal for any person engaged in trade to use for advertising purposes the name or picture of any living persons without having first obtained their consent in writing. A maximum penalty of one year in prison and a fine of $1,000 is provided. Mr. Fitzgerald said the New York court of appeals recently, in the case of a young woman who sought to restrain the unauthorized publication of her picture as part of an advertisement, "practically determined that if the picture were libelous its use could be restrained, but the mere fact that the picture was a true likeness and its use unauthorized afforded no ground for redress."

STEEL TRUST MILLIONS.

EARNINGS DURING YEAR REACHED $133,662,000.

New York, Jan. 7.—The directors of the United States Steel corporation have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1 per cent on the common and 1 3/4 per cent on the preferred stocks. A financial statement was issued showing net earnings for the calendar year, with December estimated, of $133,662,000.

The net earnings for the quarter ended December 31 were $31,339,625, an increase of $1,579,700 as compared with the same period of 1901. The transfer books close for the preferred dividend on January 20, and for the common on March 16.

ALL THE CASES CONTINUED.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 7.—The cases against Taylor, Finley, Powers, Cullton and Golden were called in the Franklin circuit court today and continued.

PETITION FOR REHEARING.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 7.—The attorneys in the Meacham injunction case, filed this afternoon with the court of appeals a petition for a rehearing.

HE STRUCK IT RICH

And in the Hour of His Triumph He Died.

Sad Fate of a Miner Who Had for Years Worked Hard in the Black Hills.

DIED FROM EXCESSIVE JOY

Roubais, S. D., Jan. 7.—David Thompson, one of the best known prospectors in the Black Hills, over which country he has hunted gold for seventeen years, yesterday struck a ledge of fabulous richness, and died of joy a few moments later.

Thompson came to the Hills seventeen years ago, fresh from the East, but with all the enthusiasm of an old miner. He has been "grubstaking" time after time, but has never made a strike of any value since beginning. He has roamed the hills and has prospected over the country.

Recently Thompson has been prospecting near this camp, and yesterday while at work he uncovered a vein of wonderfully rich ore. The strike is described as one showing a fabulous wealth of free gold. The ledge is said to be twelve feet wide, and it is stated that great chunks of free gold can be seen in the white quartz of which the ledge is composed. Some portion of the ore was assayed and runs as high as $600 per ton.

Thompson became wild with joy immediately after his strike and after ten minutes of demonstrations of delight fell to the ground in a fit. A few moments later he was dead. An examination made later by physicians showed a blood vessel in the brain to have been ruptured.

There were five partners in the mine. Although Thompson has been in the Black Hills for so many years, nothing is known of the whereabouts of his relatives. His partners will inherit his portion of the strike.

CHRISTMAS IN PORTO RICO.

It Is Celebrated From December Almost to Easter Sunday.

The Porto Rican boys and girls would be frightened out of their wits if Santa Claus should come to them in a sleigh drawn by reindeer and build try to enter the houses and fill their stockings. Down there Santa Claus does not need reindeer or any kind of sleigh, for the children say that he just comes flying through the air like a bird. Neither does he enter himself looking for stockings, or such things are not so plentiful in Porto Rico as they are in cooler climates. Instead of stockings the children use little boxes, which they make themselves. These they place on the beds and in the courtyards, and old Santa Claus drops the gifts into them as he flies around at night with his bag on his back.

He is more generous in Porto Rico than he is anywhere else. He does not come on Christmas eve only, but is likely to call around every night or two during the week. Each morning therefore, the little folks run out eagerly to see whether anything more has been left in their boxes during the night.

Christmas in Porto Rico is a church festival of much importance, and the celebration of it is made up chiefly of religious ceremonies intended to commemorate the principal events in the life of the Savior. Beginning with the celebration of his birth at Christmas time, the feast days follow one another in rapid succession. Indeed, it may justly be said that they do not really come to an end until Easter—St. Nicholas.

Trains of Starving Cattle.

The long continued drought in some of the southern portions of Australia has resulted in some queer scenes there. Farmers in the north having offered their pasture land for the starving cattle and horses, the government has undertaken the transportation of these animals to the pasture lands, and whole trains have been devoted to the work, to the delay and detriment of other railroad business. Some of the animals were so weak that the placing of them on the cars presented a serious problem. Pastoral lands in the affected districts have reverted to a state of desert. Victoria and New South Wales have suffered immense loss, while in Queensland the drought is estimated to have thrown the progress of the country back fifteen years.

This delightful innovation should not the Obarity club a nice sum, and will become quite a fad with society this winter, no doubt. A large crowd should start the ball rolling very merrily next Monday afternoon.

A SPLENDID SERVICE.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AND FINE TALKS LAST NIGHT—PROGRAM FOR TONIGHT.

The most interesting series of meetings held in Paducah for some time is the Union service at the Broadway Methodist church this week in observance of the "Week of Prayer," and this is practically attested by the enlarged attendance each evening. The Ministerial Association has been particularly happy in the arrangement of its program and in selecting the topics and the speakers to suit the occasion.

Last night was devoted to a discussion of "The Child and the Kingdom of God." A large congregation was present and a deep interest was evidenced in all that was said. The atmosphere was electrical, hearty, spontaneous and cordial. Every parent, every school teacher, and every Sunday school teacher in the city should have been present, however; the dignity and the importance of their office as a trainer of the young would have received new impetus and been more greatly magnified, and the vital need of fitting themselves for the work most vividly impressed. Secretary Stuart H. Hanna of the Y. M. C. A., was the first speaker, having the topic of the evening for his subject. Mr. Hanna handled his big subject with ease, force and skill. He is a vivid and virile speaker and delivered his telling facts with the direct force of the trained mental athlete. Rev. T. J. Newell of the Broadway Methodist church, followed with a splendid talk on "The Place of Prayer in the Development of the Child Life." Dr. Newell's description of what the home of prayer should show forth in the very pictures on its walls and the books on its table, was specially forceful. Some idea of the impression made by this talk was evidenced when there were requests made of him at the close of the service to repeat it for a Sunday morning sermon. The general discussion of the subject which followed these addresses was participated in by Iteva G. W. Perryman, W. O. Sellers, W. H. Pinkerton, and W. H. Robinson, and was full of impromptu good things enforced by telling anecdotes. The subject for this evening is one that should bring out every Christian in the city. The program is:

1. Some Hindrances to the Development of Christian Character—Rev. B. F. Welfman.

2. Relation of Prayer to the Development of Christian Character—Rev. De Witt Iron.

3. General discussion.

The ministers earnestly desire that the laymen assist in this discussion by telling what are some of the hindrances encountered in the development of Christian character from the layman's point of view.

Everyone is most cordially invited. Services begin promptly at 7:30 and will be as heretofore, at the Broadway Methodist church.

SMALL MONEY.

WHAT A QUARTER DID.

The person who uses the brain and nerves actively needs food to rebuild them and replace the waste, and should not rest on stimulants. Coffee excites these organs so they cannot get the necessary rest and nourishment and steadily tears them down, then other disorders follow.

"I am under a constant nervous strain, as I have fifty-two girls under my care," writes a school teacher from Knoxville, Tenn.

"I suffered terribly with indigestion and nervousness in its worst form, and paid out hundreds of dollars in doctors' bills. Many of my friends advised me to quit coffee and use your Postum Food Coffee, and I tasted it once and it was something horrible. Some time later I met a friend who wished me to try a cup of Postum, and her manner was so convincing that I finally tasted the Postum to please her. Great was my astonishment to find it so different from what I had drunk before, and I immediately asked how the difference in taste was brought about and discovered it was simply that the first I had was only boiled a minute or two, whereas fifteen minutes' boiling brings out the delicious flavor and food value, so I determined to use Postum in the future, following the directions carefully, and have done so ever since."

"My indigestion has entirely left me, my nervousness gone, and I now feel bright and well after the most tiresome day in the schoolroom. A little 25 cent package of Postum did me more good than the hundreds of dollars I paid for doctors' and medicines." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Theatrical Notes.

The Sam T. Jack company of burlesquers had a large audience of men at The Kentucky last night. The company is a good one of its kind, and greatly pleased the audience. Those who expected to find something rich, rare and racy were disappointed, as the show is much similar to other burlesque and variety performances. It was the first performance ever given at The Kentucky in which there was not a woman in the audience.

A company of American artists headed by Miss Kate Watson and Gus Cohen, presenting a comedy of American authorship, will be at The Kentucky Saturday, January 10, matinee and night. The play referred to is James M. Martin's brilliant three act rural comedy, "The Hoosier Girl," and its presentation in this section has so far proven a duplicate of its success elsewhere. This piece held the boards of the leading city theaters two seasons, to capacity business, and this fact alone would seem to be an unanswerable argument of success.

FUSEE EXPLODED

POPULAR I. C. CONDUCTOR INJURED WHILE ON DUTY NEAR MOUNDS.

Mr. Wals Graham, popular freight conductor of the I. C., is now confined to his bed in Jackson, Tenn., because of a very painful accident which came very near costing him his eyesight.

Mr. Graham was out on his run between Jackson and Mounds. At a point about 35 miles from Mounds it became necessary to throw on a fusee as a signal to trains behind. He lit the fusee, which is filled with red powder and which is calculated to burn for about ten minutes, giving a red light, which can be seen for a great distance. This particular fusee seemed to have been defective. Mr. Graham ignited it and was in the act of throwing it, when it exploded almost in his face. His face was badly burned.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Cured Them Both.

Dr. Miles' Nervine is a specific for nervous disorders. It removes the cause and effects a speedy and permanent cure.

"I feel it my duty to let you know that your medicine have cured my little girl of nine, of spasms. She commenced having them at the age of three. Our family doctor said she would outgrow them but she did not. We took her to another physician who said her trouble was epileptic fits in a mild form. He did her no good either. She was so nervous she could hardly walk. As I had already used Dr. Miles' Nervine I found it a good remedy for myself I commenced giving it to my child. I gave her in all ten bottles of the Nervine and one of the Blood Purifier. That was over two years ago and she has not had an attack since we commenced the treatment. She is no longer troubled with nervousness and we consider her permanently cured. I enclose her picture. My mother-in-law lost her reason and was insane for three months from the effects of LaGrippe. Six bottles of Dr. Miles' Nervine cured her. My sister has also taken it for sick headache with good results. We all thank you very much for your good medicine and kind advice. I don't think there is any other medicine half so good. I send my daughter's photograph so that you may see what a sweet little girl lives out in Arkansas."—MRS. HANNAH BARKETT, Springfield, Ark.

WITH THE JANUARY MAGAZINES

Never did McClure's Magazine begin a new year so auspiciously as with the present January number. Wherever you open it you will read it. If you are looking for a story, just as likely as not before you know it you will find yourself half way through an "article." This will certainly be the case if you begin with the leading article, "The Shame of Minneapolis," by Lincoln Steffens.

Ida M. Tarbell's History of Standard Oil also is writing of that same kind, and the third installment of it, which appears in January, "The Oil War of '73," is magnificent. A wonderful portrait of John D. Rockefeller serves as frontispiece to the number. Then there are Mr. Ray Stannard Baker's startling stories of "scabs" in the great coal strike, entitled, "The Right to Work," straightforward, ungarbled accounts of what it cost some of the workers in the coal fields to stick to the work as their conscience bade them. John Swain writes excellently of Adolf Lorenz, "The Great Austrian Surgeon with the austere hand." Clara Morris contributes, "I Stand between Lady Macbeth and Matrimony." George W. Smalley reminisces again about "English Men and Letters," and his list is a varied one. There are five tip-top stories. McClure's has its work cut out to live up to the resolutions of its January number.

The feature of the January "Every body's" is a new "Arabian Nights" story found recently by Dr. Seybold, of the University of Tubingen among the Arabic manuscripts of the late consul Wetzstein of Damascus. Mrs. Jessie Van Vorst describes her experience in factories in Chicago, being the last article of the series of "The Woman That Toils." Juliet Wilbur Tompkins contributes a most interesting study of "The Personality of Helen Gould." In "Tragedies of Steamboat Histories," G. W. Ogden tells some dramatic stories of life on the Mississippi. "Mrs. Dazzledick's at Home," the third of the "Unemployed Irish" series, describes the typical New York society woman on the search for sensational entertainment. There is a vivid account of the personality of Andrew Jackson and the scene at Calhoun's supper party at "The Indian Queen" in Washington, in "Great Days in Great Careers," by Alfred Henry Lewis David Graham Phillips describes how "Roosevelt Became President." There are a number of good vital short stories of real interest.

The "New Year" number of Lipincott's Magazine is a veritable mine of good fiction, containing a whole novel and nine short stories, besides several papers of timely interest, some obituary verse, and fun galore in the department called "Wants and Wires."

The novel is "The New Heloise" by Mrs. Schneider Crowninshield, Edgar Poe's story, "The Resurrection of Edith," is an absolutely novel plot, both weird and fascinating. Albert Payson Terhune contributes what may be considered his best effort, and his is a name well known in the story-writing world. Ina Brevoort Roberts contributes a delightful tale entitled "The Decision." "A Stolen Day," by Harriet Clay Penman, is about a day's journey on the cars, with a physiological touch which is charming. J. G. Rosengarten's paper on "Franklin in Germany" pleases while it informs. "English Wives and American Housekeeping" is ably treated by Mrs. M. E. Leicester Adams.

The January Magazine Number of The Outlook contains some six or eight illustrated articles besides full-page portraits, poems, a story and the usual very full editorial treatment of current history and literature, writes not only instructively but with entertaining anecdotes about the history of the Bodleian Library at Oxford, which has just celebrated its three hundredth anniversary; Mr. James Barnes, the author of several naval histories and stories, tells a strange chapter of United States history under the title, "The Tragedy of the Lost Commission," with quaint illustrations; a winter scene with strikingly beautiful pictures is contributed by Mr. Oscar von Klenau.

The Cosmopolitan for January is full of able articles of varied interest and a goodly amount of fiction from such notable pens as George Hildard, Tom Masson, Herbert D. Ward and Henry Seton Merriman. Viscount Wolsey gives the opening chapter of his characterization of "The Young Napoleon." Pierpont Morgan, the Adviser and the Organization," is ably treated by the editor, John Brisbane Walker himself, with a picture of

CUTICURA SOAP

The World's Greatest Skin Soap.

The Standard of Every Nation of the Earth.

Sale Greater Than the World's Product of Other Skin Soaps.

Sold Wherever Civilization Has Penetrated.

Millions of the world's best people use Cuticura Soap, as tested by Cuticura Ointment, for preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening and soothing red, rough and sore hands, for baby rashes, itchings and chaffings, in the form of baths for annoying irritations and inflammations, or too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes for ulcerative weaknesses, and many sensitive, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women, especially mothers, as well as for all the purposes of the toilet, bath and nursery.

Cuticura Soap combines delicate emollient properties derived from Cuticura, the great skin cure, with the best of cleansing ingredients and the most refreshing of flower odors. No other medicated soap ever compounded is to be compared with it for preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair and hands. No other foreign or domestic toilet soap, however expensive, is to be compared with it for all the purposes of the toilet, bath and nursery. "Thus it combines in one soap at one price the best skin and complexion soap and the best toilet and baby soap ever compounded. Sale greater than the world's product of all other skin soaps. Sold in every part of the civilized world."

Morgan as the frontispiece. The several continued articles and special departments are up to the usual good mark.

The January Pearson's contain the usual array of special articles and readable fiction, and starts off the new year in an excellent way that will doubtless increase its wide popularity.

OWENSBORO OPERA HOUSE

THE INDICATIONS ARE THAT THERE WILL BE ONE.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 7.—Mr. Josh D. Powers, president of the National Trust company of this city, is interested in a deal to build a new opera house at Owensboro. Pedley and Birch managers of the Temple theater at Owensboro, have been desirous of securing a more modern building and it is said that Mr. Powers has promised to finance the deal for them. A Western Kentucky capitalists is also said to be interested and to have expressed a willingness to invest $50,000 in the project.

The Knife Throwers

By FREDERIC VAN RENSSLAER DEY,
Author of "Not Like Other Men," Etc.

Copyright, 1901,
By Frederic Van Rensselaer Dey.

"There is still another test to be applied," continued Craig. "People who are adept in the art of knife throwing are most particular regarding the weight of their weapons. The more expert the thrower the more particular he is regarding this point. I have known them to file away substance from one in order to make it weigh precisely like the model from which it was made, so that placed upon either side of delicate scales they would perfectly balance. Send for an apothecary's scales and let us test these. If they do not weigh alike to a hair, I miss my guess."

The scales were sent for, and they proved that Wyndham was correct.

"You have a strong case," said the district attorney. "It is circumstantial but it is strong. I will have this man arrested on your complaint."

"There are two other who are accomplices, who are accessories before and after the fact—Juan Rodriguez and Emilio Bustamante. They are in the city, but I do not know where."

"We will find them," replied the officer. "It will be strange if we cannot get state evidence out of one of them."

They were interrupted at that moment by the entrance of a clerk, who laid a card on the desk before the district attorney.

"Show him in in exactly five minutes," said the official to the clerk, and when the door had closed he added to Wyndham: "We're in luck. Your Mexican friend is outside, and unless I am greatly mistaken he has his two friends with him, for he can only have applied to me for one reason."

"To charge me with the crime?"

"Precisely. Step behind that screen, Craig, and take a seat. Don't show or laugh or betray your presence in any manner, and you shall hear how I finish with this man. Wait just a moment. You have a minute or two to spare before John brings them in."

He drew a pad of paper toward him and wrote rapidly. When he finished he passed the sheet to Wyndham, and this is what he read:

Have warrants issued immediately for Carlos de Tovar y Romero, Juan Rodriguez and Emilio Bustamante, charged by this office with the murder of Burr Pendleton. One of them at least is here now, possibly the other. Send in three officers to make the arrest. Louis M. Dey.

The district attorney's signature was appended, and the note was addressed to one of his assistants.

"Now get behind your screen, Craig," he said while he folded the document and placed it in an envelope. "That's up."

Wyndham had scarcely taken his seat when there was a rap on the door and the clerk entered, as the official had prophesied, followed by three men, the first most of whom was Escudera.

"I have taken the liberty of bringing these gentlemen with me," he said with the utmost civility and politeness. "Because they are able to state statulike what I have to say. I have a very grave charge to make, Mr. District Attorney."

"He seated, gentlemen," was the reply, not less suave than the introduction. "What is the charge, Mr. Romero, and whom does it concern?"

"Pardon me, sir. My name is Escudera. Romero is the family name of my mother."

"Ah, yes! Well, what is the charge, and whom does it concern?"

"The charge, sir, is murder. It concerns a prominent citizen of this city, one Craig Wyndham, who, I have strong reasons to believe, murdered his friend, Burr Pendleton."

"What?" cried the district attorney, evidently astonished out of his official calm. "The Pendleton case? Craig Wyndham the murderer? Impossible!"

"You will believe it to be more than probable, sir, when you have heard all that I have to tell you."

The district attorney rang the bell sharply and when the clerk appeared said:

"Send in my stenographer." Then to Escudera he added: "You make a grave accusation, Mr. Escudera. Not a word of the evidence you have to give shall be lost."

The stenographer appeared at once, and then he added, "Now, sir, begin."

"I arrived in New York from Mexico one day in advance of Mr. Pendleton, whom I had known in the City of Mexico. I performed a few slight services for him there, and we became warm friends. I had announced to him my intention of visiting New York, and he gave me a card of introduction at the club, so I presented it at once. I was in the club when he arrived, and I saw him meet Wyndham on the steps outside. They went to a quiet corner together and talked for a long time. Presently I walked past them, and Pendleton, recognizing me, rose at once. We left the club together within a few moments of that time."

"Why did you go out of the club?" asked the official.

"At his request. He wished me to go to his rooms with him, for no other reason, I think, than that we might talk together uninterrupted."

"And you business together?"

"None whatever. I think that Pendleton wished to get away from Wyndham, in fact, he intimated as much."

"Ah, I see."

"I remained in his rooms about or nearly an hour. He agreed to meet me at the club again that night. I then went to my hotel."

"What time did you leave the club to go to Pendleton's rooms?"

"A little after 5."

"What time were you to meet at the club again?"

"There was no definite time—that evening. He did not come. I called at his rooms the following morning, but, receiving no answer to my summons, went away. I did not know of his death until it was announced in the newspapers."

"Then how do you connect Wyndham with the crime?"

"Wyndham went to Pendleton's rooms the same evening that I was there, but about 10 o'clock. He was there more than an hour. While he was there Pendleton's valet came out and went away. He was sobbing, and he appeared greatly frightened. Some time after he had gone Wyndham came out. He passed on the steps and looked carefully around him. His face was very white, and he seemed to fear to be seen. He soon started up the street and turned the first corner he came to."

"How do you know all this, Mr. Escudera?"

"Pardon me. I have unconsciously given the testimony of these gentlemen who are with me. Personally I do not know it."

The district attorney wheeled like a flash upon the others.

"Were you watching Mr. Wyndham?" he demanded sharply.

"Not watch!"

"What is your name?" interrupted the official.

"Juan, or John, Rodriguez."

"And yours?" turning to the remaining witness.

"Emilio Bustamante."

"Now, Mr. Rodriguez, proceed."

"We were not watching him in the sense that you use the term, but we were watching for him."

"How was that?"

"We were passing the house when he entered it. Bustamante believed he recognized in him an old friend for whose address he had vainly sought. He accordingly inquired of the hallboy for that friend, but was told that no such person lived there."

"What is the name of your friend, Mr. Bustamante?"

"John Caldwell," replied Bustamante promptly. "He is an Englishman."

"Proceed, Mr. Rodriguez."

"When he found that no such person resided there, he decided that his friend was making a call and resolved to wait till he came out. As it was getting late he believed his friend would not remain long. I demurred, but he prevailed upon me to wait with him."

"And you waited more than an hour?"

"While we were waiting an old man came out sobbing. He seemed dazed and frightened. We at once thought something was the matter. I spoke to the old man, but he did not reply. After that we waited awhile longer and ultimately saw the man, whom we now know to be Wyndham, come from the house. His behavior was precisely as Mr. Escudera has described it to you."

"Why did you not arrest your supposed friend, Mr. Bustamante? Or did you?"

"No. I saw at a glance that I was mistaken. The light shone in his face when he came out. I could not be deceived then."

"How do you know now that it was Wyndham you saw?"

"Because I have seen him many times since in the company of my friend, Escudera."

"And you also, Rodriguez?"

"Yes."

"What time was it when he came out of the house?"

"I cannot say exactly."

"Well, approximately?"

"Somewhere about 11."

"It was 11 o'clock or a little after that when he reentered the club," interrupted Escudera.

"How do you know that, Mr. Escudera?"

"I went into the club immediately behind him."

"Was that the time you were to meet Mr. Pendleton there?"

"There was no stated hour, but it was understood to be late in the evening. I think I stated."

"So you did, so you did. Excuse me."

There was a rap at the door, and the clerk entered again. He laid a card upon which there was writing on the table, and the district attorney snatched it up with a furious scowl.

"You should place messages like this in my hands, John," he said severely. Then he glanced at the inscription and added:

"Tell them to wait at the door and to come in when I ring. I will call them as soon as I have finished with these gentlemen."

He turned then again to Escudera.

"And upon this you base your charges of murder against Craig Wyndham?" he asked in the pleasant tone imaginable.

"I do."

"Because it is proved that he was the last person in the rooms of Pendleton. Burr Pendleton was never seen alive after that time. The highest deduction that he was murdered about that time because the servant went away while Wyndham was still in the house and has not been seen since, and he was publicly accused of the crime, and the police are still searching for him, I understand."

"That is quite true. Is there anything more?"

"Because Wyndham was made sole heir of all that Pendleton possessed, and he above all others had a motive for the crime. He could easily believe the servant to assist him or to go away and leave him to do the work alone."

"That has a reasonable sound. Have you any more reasons, Mr. Escudera?"

"Yes, one more, the weight of all."

"What is that?"

"That old servant James is living in the house where his master was murdered and is acting as the valet of Wyndham."

"What?" cried the district attorney again, and he added mentally: "My Jove, if I had heard this before Wyndham told me about it, it might have impressed me—all but the evidence of those two lying secondhands with you, Mr. Escudera. Nobody with any sense would believe the story they tell."

"It is true," said Escudera, replying to the exclamation.

"How do you know that?"

"I have seen him there. I saw him there last night. I know him well. I have often seen him in Mexico, and I also saw him the night of the murder. You will remember."

"Now, Mr. Escudera, and you, gentlemen, what object have you in pursuing Mr. Wyndham with this terrible accusation?"

"Simply that justice be done, sir," replied Escudera. "I was Pendleton's friend. I would like to see his murderer punished."

"You want justice, then?"

"I do. I demand it."

"How, by murder, you shall have it?" He struck the bell sharply. The door opened, and three officers in plain clothes entered the room. The district attorney waved his hand.

"There are your men. Take them," he said. "Come out, Wyndham. These fellows make me sick."

CHAPTER XII.

RODRIGUEZ'S CONFESSION.

FOR a moment the three Mexicans were too greatly astounded to move or to speak, and that moment was sufficient to give the officers a chance to seize them.

Escudera wheeled like lightning, but, observing instantly that there was no chance to escape and doubtless realizing the futility of such a thing even if he could effect it, remained motionless where he stood while the officer nearest him snatched a pair of handcuffs on his wrist.

Rodriguez made one heroic dash toward the door, but ran straight into the embrace of the officer nearest him and was also handcuffed.

Bustamante acted as his half developed nature had taught him to act in emergencies. He whipped out a knife and struck with all his strength straight for the heart of the man who charged upon him. The weapon would have taken effect and there would have been a second murder chargeable against the trio but for the presence of Craig Wyndham.

He appeared from behind the screen where he had been concealed just in time to see the weapon raised, and he sprang toward the maddened man and seized his wrist. He was only partly successful, however. He diverted the blow so that it cut through the officer's sleeve and inflicted an ugly gash on the fleshy part of his arm.

Through it all the district attorney remained unmoved in his chair. In deed there was scarcely time for him to do much else, for the whole scene did not occupy more than half a dozen seconds. After that there was a picture which would have made excellent material for a tableau—the three men handcuffed, one calm and smiling cynically, another pale with fright and the third furiously with batted rage, the officers beside them, with firm hands upon their shoulders; on the other side of the table the district attorney, still seated in his armchair and looking ineffably bored, and beside him, with one hand on the back of his chair, the tall, athletic figure of Craig Wyndham, looking like the god of Vengeance sat-bled.

Escudera was the first to break the silence that followed the short struggle.

"I suppose, Mr. Craig Wyndham, I owe this to you," he said.

"I think you owe it to yourself and your own treachery," replied Wyndham coolly.

"Do you believe that you can fasten your crime upon me?" continued the Mexican. But the district attorney interrupted before Wyndham could respond.

"Take those two men from the room," he commanded sternly. "Attend Dinn, remain here with your prisoner, Rodriguez. We have not done with him yet."

"Juan"—began Escudera, but again he was interrupted, this time by the officer who had him in charge, who clapped one hand rudely over his mouth and led him out of the room.

"Rodriguez," said the district attorney softly when the others had gone, "I do not believe that you are as bad as the others, and for that reason I have kept you here to talk with you alone."

The stenographer seized his pen again and resumed work.

"Do you know," continued the official, "that there has not been a moment since Pendleton was murdered when you and your friends have not been followed by the police? We have not had you arrested simply because we were waiting for additional proof. And where do you suppose we expected to get that? I will tell you because you could not guess—from Mexico."

"From Mexico!" exclaimed Rodriguez involuntarily. The craftiness of the district attorney was too much for him.

"Yes, from Mexico," continued the official, inventing as he went along from the tale that Wyndham had told him. "We know, for example, that there was a conspiracy hatched between four of you and that Captain Ignacio Romero, now lying wounded in the City of Mexico, is the chief conspirator. We know that Escudera, Bustamante and you came here for the avowed purpose of assassinate Burr Pendleton. We know it because Romero has confessed."

Rodriguez started back and uttered a Spanish oath that is untranslatable. Then, whiter than before, he fixed his eyes again upon the district attorney, who after a moment's pause continued:

"It is more than likely, Rodriguez, that you will all go to the electric chair. Escudera and Bustamante certainly will, but you may possibly escape it."

"How?" gasped the man, now thoroughly frightened.

"By confessing freely everything you know concerning this matter. By doing that you will save us time, expense and trouble, and in return for that I can promise you that the judge will be lenient. You will not be executed. You may get off with a short term in prison. Think it over and answer me, for this is the last opportunity you will have."

"I am willing to tell all I know, sir. My life is worth more to me than their friendship."

"I thought so."

"Escudera killed Pendleton."

"Oh, I know that already! Tell me something I don't know."

"He can throw a knife straighter than you can shoot a pistol ball. He stood in the bedroom doorway and threw a knife into Pendleton's heart."

"I know that too. Tell me something I don't know."

"I followed him and Pendleton when they left the club that night. I crept up the stairs after them. I was even in the outer room where I could see Escudera throw the weapon when he did it, and I did see him."

"That is better. I know that also, to be sure, but I did not know all of it. Go on."

"I was obeying Escudera's orders. He was afraid that we might have to do for the old servant as well, and he thought it might take two of us. It was necessary that Pendleton should be put out of the way at once. I don't know why. It was something about some property."

"Yes; go on."

"Escudera told me to follow them and go up the stairs. The minute he was alone he was to open the door so that I could enter the room and secrete myself until the right moment. He had, while Pendleton was in Mexico, asked him to take charge of some papers for him which he pretended were of great value. He asked Pendleton for these papers that night. That was how he got him out of the room long enough to let me in. I hid behind the curtains at one of the windows. We did not much fear discovery, for if we had been discovered the old servant would have been killed also—that is, if my courage had held out, but I don't think it would."

"Nor I. Go on."

"Pendleton said he was tired and proposed taking a rest because he expected to be up late that night to transact some business with Mr. Wyndham, who was to go to him there."

"Understand, Well?"

THE FATAL SPOT

In everybody's foot there is one weak spot—The toes are strong, the ball of the foot is firm, the heel is unyielding, but the ARCH of the foot under the instep is a weak place. Being arched it is wholly unsupported—being weak it is the one place that gets tired, but all the same its muscle by which you walk, its the one part of the foot that needs to be helped.

The Dorothy Dodd Shoe

supports the arch of the foot by a special curved shank between the inner and outer soles, this shank exactly follows the arch of the foot. It holds its shape and supports the foot.

Respectfully,

Dorothy Dodd
